Who investigates my complaint?

Complaints regarding allegations of minor rule or policy violations may be assigned to the employee's supervisor for investigation and disposition. At the conclusion of the investigation, the employee's supervisor will notify the complainant to advise them of the disposition of their complaint.

Complaints regarding allegations of major rule or policy violations will result in the preparation of a Departmental Inquiry, which contains a summary of the allegations that have been received for investigation.

After a complaint is fully and properly investigated, the Office of Professional Standards will render a recommendation based on the established facts and circumstances. This recommendation, along with its supporting information, will be included in the Departmental Inquiry. Once completed, the Departmental Inquiry is delivered to the Office of the Chief of Police for final approval and disposition. The Office of Professional Standards will provide written notice to both the complainant and the employee of the final disposition of an Internal Affairs Unit investigation and provide each with an opportunity to discuss the disposition.

What are the possible outcomes of an investigation?

Your complaint will result in one of the following conclusions:

- UNFOUNDED: When the investigation discloses that the alleged acts did not occur or did not involve department members.
- EXONERATED: When the investigation discloses that the alleged acts occurred but was justified, lawful, and/or proper.
- NOT SUSTAINED: When the investigation discloses that there is insufficient evidence to establish that the act occurred and that it constituted misconduct.
- SUSTAINED: When the investigation discloses sufficient evidence to establish that the act occurred and that it constituted misconduct.

There are five types of action, which can be recommended for a sustained case:

1. Training
2. Counseling
3. Written Reprimand
4. Suspension without Pay
5. Discharge from the Department

Sworn police officers and civilian employees may appeal written reprimands, suspensions, and discharges from the Department.
